The RECORD-UNION is the only paper on the coast, outside of San Francisco, that receives a full Associated Press dispatch from all parts of the world. Outside of San Francisco it has no competitor, in point of numbers, in its home and general circulation throughout the coast.

A DAM PROJECT.

Hiram Cadwalader has written a long letter to the Mining and Scientific Press, in which he gives his ideas of a plan for enabling hydraulic mining to be prosecuted on the Yuba river and its tributaries.

He would erect a series of dams where solid bottom can be secured. The chief dam he would have at a point on the river where it is flanked by rocky cliffs. Every forty feet in height of the dam would grade up about a mile. When the dam attains a height of 250 or 300 feet the water would flow over a solid granite ridge, and not over the dam. Such a dam would, he says, hold the tailings of about thirty-two years. He would have the State undertake the work, and propose that efforts be made to secure $1,000,000 from Congress in aid of it. It is a tax on the mines he would raise $1,000,000 more. He would then have a branch prison located at the dam by the State, that the prisoners might be employed to do the work. All this would take the mining business ahead thirty-two years, when there would be little or no hydraulic mining to be done on the Yuba. Probably not. Nor would there at the end of that time be left any Sacramento, Yuba or Feather rivers, and but little of the most fertile portions of the Sacramento valley, while as for river towns and cities known to this generation, they would be very much scarcer than the proverbial hen's tooth. All such schemes are chimerical, not to say foolish, Mr. Cadwalader does the mining region injury by encouraging the hope that any such plan is at all possible. In the first place, the State will never consent to enter upon any such work, whatever Congress might be induced to do. In the next place, the dams would not prevent the descent of the fine sediment that thus far down on the Sacramento river has done about all the damage of which we complain. In the third place, the outgo for the works would not be justified by the reward that would accrue to the public. In the last place, no such scheme can obtain State consent to its inauguration without the approval of the people of the valley, and that will never be given. The Cadwalader plan is as wildly improbable as the conjurings of a dream induced by a too hearty Christmas dinner. If there is to be expended any money by the State or the Nation in the matter of preventing the descent of the debris and sediment from hydraulic mining, it will be and should be expended in preventing the coming down upon the valley of the almost immeasurable quantities of sand and debris already in the lower reaches of the Yuba, and with each flood season, must do and come nearer to the valley lands; and must do each year more and more impair those two navigable streams, the Sacramento and the Feather. Indeed, the Feather's mouth is already so clogged by this descent that it is scarcely able to discharge its waters at all in the dry season. All the deposits to which we refer are far below the mines. They constitute a menace to property holdings along the Sacramento river, and therefore must be retained where they are. And the sooner this is done the easier will be the task. This is the unanimous verdict of engineering judgment, and tallies with the opinion of all who have given the matter any considerable study. But this is, we claim, properly the work of the Federal Government. By its neglect the accumulations came where they are. It is its duty to save the chief navigable stream, and harbor of the State from destruction, and it can only do so by staying the descent of debris already out of the mines and in the upper streams. Such work we believe will some day be entered upon by the Government, but never should be of a nature to warrant, or to give any license whatever to the depositing in the streams, or behind or upon or in such works, by hydraulic miners, or new contributions of sand, silt, clays, or debris. The idea that any such dams are ever to be constructed for such purpose, as we have indicated, and then be used for the continuing of hydraulic mining, and therefore to their own destruction, is simply ridiculous.

OUR HOLIDAY NUMBER.

On Friday next we shall publish the usual holiday number of the RECORD-UNION. It will be found to be of special excellence. It will differ from former issues of New Year's numbers, in being mainly devoted to an exposition of the agricultural and industrial advantages and resources of northern and central California. Yet ample consideration will be given to local matters, and the variety essential to a successful effort of that kind will be maintained. It will contain a story written for the RECORD-UNION that will be found to be of the liveliest interest and to enchain the attention from opening to the close. It is especially strong in pathos. In addition to the special articles on the counties of northern and central California, there will appear educational statistics; a paper on tea culture in California; one on the mineralogy of California; on the food fishes of the State; on sugar making; on nut-bearing trees; on a buried city of Mexico; on the trade of Sacramento; on fruit-culture in California, and a number of other highly valuable and interesting papers. In addition, there will appear the usual record of births, deaths and marriages for 1885, a glance at the Old World affairs, a directory of leading business houses, the usual amount of telegraphic and local news, etc. An especially interesting feature, showing the rainfall at about 200 stations in this State, will be presented, and will be found very valuable for preservation. The RECORD-UNION of Friday next will be of high value for sending abroad, as fully and fairly as the postoffice of the claims of a section of country of which altogether too little is known beyond State bounds. A very large edition will be issued, and it will be widely distributed in the State and at the East, under orders already filed. The public may rest assured that this distribution of the paper will not be by packages to remain unclaimed in distant offices, but that it will be sent abroad—individually addressed—to sections where inquiry concerning California is frequent, and where reliable information of the resources of our State is eagerly sought. Those who desire extra copies of this paper on Friday next should file their orders for the same at once.

It is gratifying to know that the whole system and history of our control of and relations with the Indian tribes of America is to be officially investigated by the present Administration. If such an investigation is conducted with judicial impartiality, and kept free from partisan bias, it can result only in good. That the Indian tribes have for years, in large part, been made the victims of chicanery, robbery and outrage by subordinate officials of the Government, is certain, and that the policy recommended by General Crook is the correct one for the control of the tribes, is equally certain. But the statements of Territorial residents are so conflicting, and the reports of officials are so widely different as to facts, and vary so greatly in recommendation, that a comprehensive investigation is necessary. We have faith that such inquiry will result in the adoption of the policy of the late Secretary of the Interior and of General Crook, by which the tribal character of the Indian groups will be no longer recognized, and the American Indian will be placed under the protection and made amenable to all the laws of the land, and in all ways treated, not as an alien, but as a ward of the Government, entitled to the shelter of the law and responsible in his individual character to it.

ONE of the first measures that should pass both Houses of the next Legislature, and receive the gubernatorial sanction, should be a bill declaring affirmatively that no contract to marry shall be valid for any purpose unless executed in the presence of three or more witnesses of full age, and unless the instrument is filed for record in the office of the County Recorder. We want no more Hill-Sharon infamies in this State. As our laws now stand they are open to the charge of warranting marriage by secret contract.

The Citrus Fair.

It has been determined by the Executive Committee of the Northern California Citrus Fair, to open this city on the 11th of January, and take the award for the finest county exhibit next to the State Fair. Besides being a highly honorable distinction, such an award will place the winning county in the lead for home-seekers. The preparatory work for the fair is progressing most satisfactorily, and unexpected success is being met with in relation to the fine citrus exhibits from various localities. It is fully evident that although the fair should have been held at least a month earlier, and probably will be next year, there will be entire success achieved the present season, and such as to astonish not only Eastern excursionists visiting here or passing through the city, but also many of our own people who are residing in this section of the State who have not been to the fair. The extent of semi-trip citrus fruits now raised in this section of the State is being warmly supported by the press of this portion of California, and the indications are that there will be a very large attendance to witness this new line of exhibits. The Executive Committee of the fair have written to the railroad authorities asking that excursion rates be granted during the exhibition, and the State Fair. The managers of the fair will pay all express charges upon packages shipped here for the exhibition.

The Sonoma Democrat, referring to the fair, says: "A movement is on foot to hold an exhibition of citrus fruits, to include the whole of northern California, in January next. It is believed that a display could be made that would astonish the public. It is proposed to include dried and preserved fruits, olives and olive oil, nuts and raisins. Such an exhibition, we have no doubt, would be productive of good results. The adaptability of citrus fruits to the production of citrus fruits is very imperfectly understood, and but few have an idea of what has already been accomplished in that direction. Such an exhibition as the one proposed would do much to educate the people and stimulate the production of these fruits."

AMERICAN EXHIBITION IN LONDON.—An account of the American exhibition to be held in London in 1886 has already been published in the columns of the RECORD-UNION. Albert Gallatin, who is one of the representatives of the great enterprise from this coast, has received a letter from the Secretary of the Exhibition, saying that the work of preparation is so far advanced that the complete success is now happily assured. The headquarters of the Secretary of the Exhibition, J. G. Speed—is as yet at 32 Nassau street, New York, and by whom any particulars will be cheerfully furnished upon application. The exhibit is to be of the products of the United States, and of the resources of the United States, and is to be opened in Earl's court, Kensington, London, on May 1st.

Laundry Orders Constitutional. SAN FRANCISCO, December 28th.—Received by the City of York, on habeas corpus, the Supreme Court today decided that all the laundry orders passed by the Supervisors are constitutional. The only real question before the Court was the bawling manner in which former Supervisors did their work. The Court holds the whole batch to be lawful.
